11 to 12 a. m.—Inspection of forestry work of the board of water commissioners of Middletown; lunch on basket picnic.

1230 p. m.—Reports and election of officers; addresses, New Methods of Fighting Forest Fires, Prof. S. J. Reed, New Haven; Forest Planting by Water Companies, Prof. R. S. Hawley, New Haven.

SUMMER SCHEDULE AT THE AUDITORIUM.

On next Monday—May the first, the policy of the Auditorium theater will be changed from the usual run of four vaudeville acts to three high class acts and illustrated songs, which will be sung by Mr. Nick Appenzeller. This young man comes to us with the highest recommendations and we are assured, through the Taylor theatrical exchange of New York city, which makes a specialty of handling only the best of singers for these prettily illustrated, pictured melodrama, Appenzeller has been secured with an engagement of several weeks and will no doubt sing his way into popular favor with those who appreciate a good voice, well trained and of good volume. Positively one of the world's greatest masters of the xylophone is El. Cleve, who will appear on Monday's bill. He is a native of the popular selection of the traveling showman and the girl is a neat little comedy presented by Ascott & Eddie. The turn is full of new ideas, bright lines, fancy costumes, catches, songs, and a pantomime dance which puts the finishing touches on one of the best acts of its kind ever presented at this popular house. Watson & Sandy, a couple of boys in a blackface act, will keep the fun up to a high pitch during their fifteen-minute turn, in which they introduce many of their own original specialties. The night's entertainment will be new, clear and of an interesting nature.

BREED THEATER.

The programme at the Breed for today is an especially strong one, featuring two very fine western stories, that are filled with exciting situations, thrilling climaxes and superb acting. In one of these pictures, entitled "In the Desert's Edge," the hero is blinded by the shifting sands and in wandering about falls over a steep precipice, remaining in his blinded condition in a ravine until he is later found by the heroine, who brings him to her home, where she nurses him back to health. The other picture, entitled "The School Marrow of Coyote County" and is a clever mixture of comedy and drama, introducing some novel effects, while the Biograph company, entitled "Priscilla and Her Umbrella" is another of those refreshingly refined comedies, cleverly depicting some humorous happenings in a family of wealth. Miss Lavinia sings the bright and fetching song, "Haven't You Forgotten Something?"

"ARIZONA."

"Arizona," which will be the farewell offering of the Poli company for this season, is generally regarded as the masterpiece of Augustus Thomas, whose prolific pen has given us some of the most dramatic comedies. Indeed, it may be said that "Arizona" is admitted to be the greatest typically American play ever written. The author resided for some time in the locality from which he drew his characters, and absorbed the atmosphere of a land that is rich in romance and venture. Not only are the characters depicted in the drama faithful reproductions of the red-blooded people of the frontier, but the story is vital and intense, and the dramatic incidents crowd so closely upon one another as to keep the spectator enthralled until the final curtain.

The drama tells a story of love and intrigue at the Fort Grant military post and at the Canby ranch in Arizona, and it is thus at once a military and a western play, in which soldiers and cowboys are the principal characters. Every playright who has turned out a western play has felt in duty bound to burden it with impossible Indians and new-fangled battles.

In "Arizona," however, there is no suggestion of the wild and woolly. Greatly to Mr. Thomas' credit, he succeeded in writing a great western play without the aid of the noble red man or ear-splitting firearms. Only one shot is fired in "Arizona."

Miss Blanche Douglas, who has already established herself in popular favor, will have a splendid opportunity to show her versatility in the role of Renita, a typical girl of the golden west. Mr. McQuarrie, the Ukiah leading man, will play Captain Denton, the heroic young soldier who sacrifices his character to save the wife of his captain from disgrace. There are so many good parts in the play that it is difficult to individualize, but it is stated that the play is splendidly cast, and Stage Director Socola promises an unusually pretentious production.

Cast of characters, in order of their first appearance:

Music to Democrats.

Republican Leader Mann speaks of the "brutal action" of the majority. We don't mind the names, just so long as we can make them squawk.—Houston Post.

An Uncommitted Crime.

And so far no paragraph has twisted the familiar phrase to speak of the Mann behind the Cannon!—Boston Transcript.

Sign of Popularity.

Champ Clark cannot be sure that he has attained the popularity of his predecessor, until people generally begin to call him "Uncle Sam's Clerk."
